FAQ's

What does an electrical lineworker do?

An electrical line worker performs a variety of tasks in diverse situations and areas. A line worker may be climbing poles or operating aerial lift devices to work on overhead lines 25 to 200 feet above the ground, while the next day they may be working on a substation or digging trenches to string underground electric cable. They also have their CDL and operate a digger derrick, bucket truck and various other industry equipment. Line workers work outside in all kinds of weather. Severe weather or accidents can knock out power to a community, and line workers may be needed at any hour to restore the power.

What does a communications lineworker do?

A communications line worker performs a variety of tasks in diverse situations and areas. A line worker may be climbing poles and maneuvering in elevated positions on wooden poles. Communication line workers will also build and maintain all aspects of telecom line construction. They also have their CDL and operate a digger derrick, bucket truck and various other industry equipment. Line workers work outside in all kinds of weather. Severe weather or accidents can knock out telecom lines to a community, and line workers may be needed at any hour to restore the service.

I'm interested in a career as a lineworker. Now what?

It's a good idea to do some research before pursuing the career of an electrical line worker or communications line worker programs. Schools like North American Lineman Training Center and Southeastern Lineman Training Center have resources for those who are considering this field of work. You can also request a brochure or talk with an admission consultant before deciding which school is right for you.

Who is eligible to receive this scholarship?

Applicants who have been accepted into a line worker school/program must be an active member of Cumberland Electric Membership Corporation or live with a parent/guardian who is an active member. Applicants must be at least 18 years of age, hold a valid driving license and possess a high school diploma or a GED certificate.

Are only graduating seniors eligible?

No! The CEMC line workers scholarship is available to any active member of Cumberland Electric Membership Corporation who is interested in pursuing a career in electrical and communications line work, regardless of age. The only requirement is that applicants must obtain a high school diploma or GED certificate and have a valid driver's license.

Who can write a letter of recommendation for me?

A teacher, counselor, spiritual leader, employer or other individual may write the recommendation, if he or she is not related to you or an employee of CEMC + Cumberland Connect. The person writing the recommendation must be able to describe how they know you and support the information you have provided in your scholarship application.

Lineworker Scholarship

FAQ's

What are the scholarship recipient's obligations?

The $2,000.00 scholarship will be paid in full to the line worker school/program or the recipient prior to the start of the term. Upon completion of the line worker program, the recipient is not obligated to apply or work for Cumberland Electric Membership Corporation.
